Michael Anderle

Chief Executive Officer

In January of this year, we announced the launch of our new company LMBPN® International FZC, a Sharjah Publishing City Free Zone Company (SPCFZC) located in the Emirate of Sharjah, UAE and led by the company's Chief Executive Officer, Judith Anderle. The new company focuses on publishing original content in languages other than English plus translated content.

Why Sharjah? Over the last years, some of the largest publishing companies have established a presence in Sharjah so it made sense that as a leader in the indie community, our companies also needed a presence there.

Also, establishing this presence marked a major expansion as both companies continue on the path to reach readers around the world in their native languages.

At LMBPN® International FZC, we will publish authors who seek a forward-thinking indie publisher to get their native language and translated books to readers worldwide.

Our initial focus will be to make new acquisitions of partnerships, expand on our global digital presence and engagement, and ensure that our readers engage with LMBPN in various languages and genres.

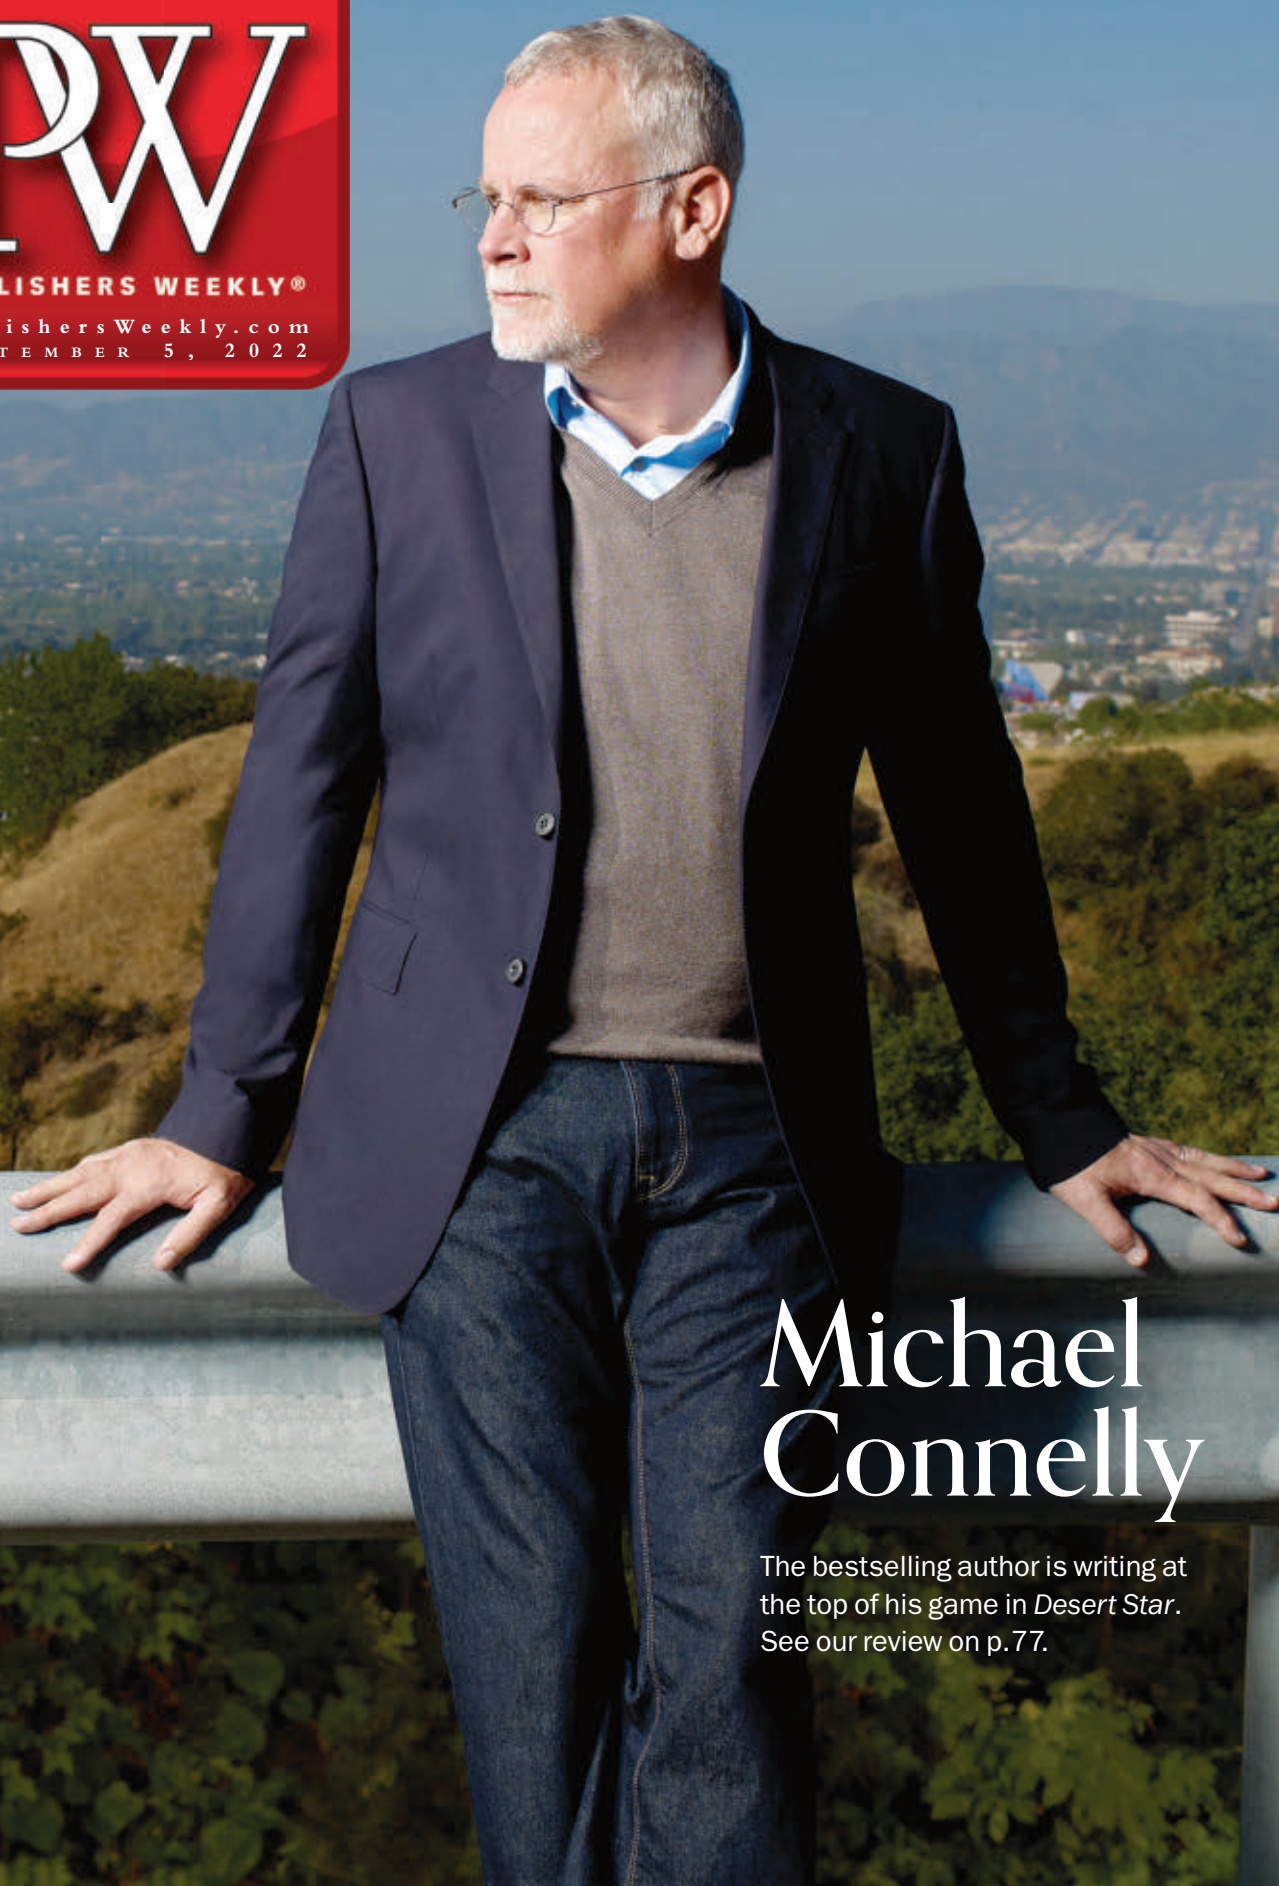

To all authors and readers we say أهلاً وسهلاً, 歡迎, Welkom, Bienvenue, Willkommen, Benvenuto, ようこそ, Ben-Vindos, Bienvenidos.

With an extraordinary interest in the macabre, book author G. R. Jerry uses this to fuel his dreams which are all deep-rooted in his childhood interest with words, where bizarreness and dread are combined to create a universe that includes his most recent creation now taking us a turn to a psychological thriller book, Claim Denied. So hold on to your seats, and meet Mr. Insurance Man, Benjamin F. Johnson, a highly specialized adjuster and a workaholic, consumed by his dedication to ethical conduct and an addiction to a world of fantasy as here comes another masterpiece in the form of a book.

We have our ways of leaving our legacies to society. Some are through shared and lived experiences, traveling, mutual gatherings, community exposures, or unending selfies that are often on social media. Yet, some prefer to have it imprinted in a book. This is what the humorous and candor author, Anne Marie Herman wants to do.

Through her writings like the Positive Affirmation—Fear No More: Memoir, along with other books she has authored, she has always aimed to base them on her real personal experiences that are backed with research but are still compelling for the readers to open their eyes, value, or even bring back the essential thing that was once lost—health.

“Health is wealth,” cliché as this sounds yet, is what Anne Marie, wants to impart.

EBOOK
978-1-63871-673-0 $2.99

Dr. Lance Fogan's passion for writing and for his dedication to his field of neurology, inspired him to create Dings. The novel is seen through the eyes of a mother who must gather strength to defend her bright third-grade son from being moved back to second grade. Embittered that her husband is on a second combat tour in 2007 Iraq she must now face Conner's teachers alone. They contend that the boy is just not keeping up. No one knows why. Conner's friends think he sometimes acts weird. The reader will accompany the family as they travel their emotional and clinical journey to find answers. Readers will be introduced to a condition affecting over three million Americans, many of whom are the highest achievers in society. Millions of others are directly or indirectly touched by the convulsive and the non-convulsive blank-out epileptic forms. As a neurologist-author, the American Academy of Neurology awarded him the History of Neurology Prize in 1988 for his paper, The Neurology in Shakespeare. He completed the School of Medicine at the State University of New York in hometown Buffalo in 1965 and soon thereafter married his wife of 50 years. Majoring in Anthropology and Linguistics before medical school, he exploited these backgrounds volunteering at a mission hospital as a medical student in Papua New Guinea. The success of Dings is through a special kind of storytelling seen through the eyes of a mother and her child. As a doctor, he aims to educate that any mental problem is not something easily diagnosed through the stress and anxieties seen on the surface but is something more profound, deeper.
