Trivia is the fun side of history, as Joe W. Boyd would say. Born and raised in Texas, he enjoys learning fascinating things that usually get overlooked. His passion for history and trivia has compelled him to write and send out the emails that would later progress into Letters from Mr. JB Fact Finder. Believing that more students would be interested in history if teachers injected a little trivia into it, he diligently wrote emails that contained historical facts and intriguing trivia and would draw in more and more people. From there, Mr. Boyd's stories also grew and were soon compiled into the book that became a finalist in the 2020 IAN book competition.

Letters from Mr. JB Fact Finder has an interactive tone with subjects ranging from different cultures and traditions to laws and folklore, making it a book for every type of reader.

As someone who firmly believes in the second line of The Declaration of Independence, James Dominic wrote a three-part novel that features this core message. In his book Cnet, He creates the character of Johnathan Flakes, an average documentary producer who lost his wife in the Bali bomb blast in 2002. The loss of wife entailed the loss of his purpose. He travelled to India in search of his purpose. There he met Michael Lingdon. A friendship formed, unique and beautiful. Together they made a movie called America.

In another part of the world, The Traveller, a ruthless terrorist plots the end of Hollywood. He intends to bring about the Clash of Civilizations, he intends to tear the very fabrics of humanity. He had a change of heart after watching a movie. A movie called America. The movie, America was released in the summer of 2015. It changed the world. By the fall of 2016, the world was looking for Michael Lingdon, The man behind America. The man who changed the world.
